Sandwich & Pegwell and Ham Fen Team

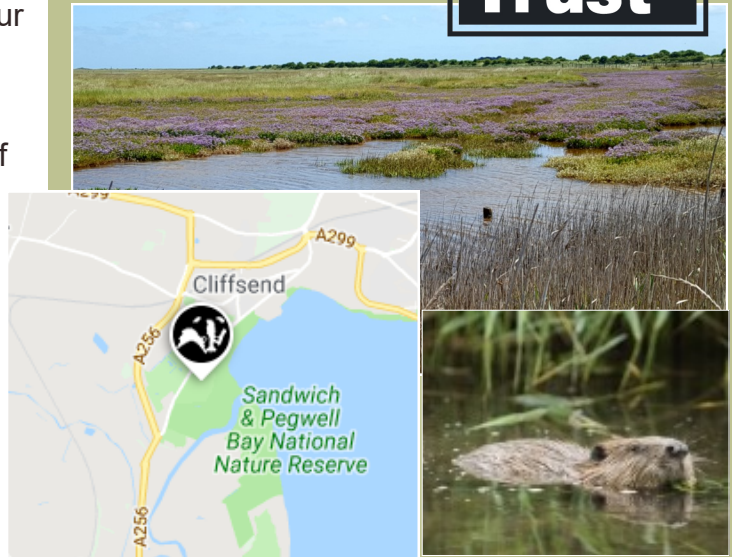

Come and join our team of four wardens and friendly band of volunteers. All of the wardens started out as volunteer trainees, and now bring a wide range of expertise.

We work together outdoors in all weathers, doing essential work to ensure our nationally important reserves are special places for wildlife. Our volunteers play a vital part in ensuring rare species have a future.

A recent 33-acre extension to Ham Fen has created lots of work so we are looking to expand our existing team of well-established volunteers.

Ham Fen is the last surviving ancient fen in Kent. The introduction of beavers has helped return habitat features crucial for water voles, kingfishers, fish and other aquatic creatures. Only staff and volunteers can visit this closed site.

Sandwich & Pegwell Bay is a National Nature Reserve and a coastal haven of international importance for birds and rare flora. Boasting ancient dunes, sand and shingle, white cliffs and saltmarsh, you can find seals, rare birds, butterflies, and spectacular Lizard orchids here.

Commitment: Our task days are twice a week, and you can do both, come weekly, monthly, or ad-hoc.

Training: Full training is given and you'll only be asked to do work you are comfortable with. There is the option to do further training in machinery use or team leading too.

CoastLife Citizen Science

Last year we launched an exciting long-term study to monitor bird disturbance at Sandwich and Pegwell Bay. Whilst enjoying a walk along the coastline, volunteers are collecting valuable data that will help us better protect our coastal birds and their habitats.

Why is it important?

Sandwich & Pegwell Bay National Nature Reserve is host to high numbers of migratory, overwintering and breeding birds. The site is very popular with visitors but an increase in recreational activities has had an impact on wildlife.

What's in it for you?
